

ROBISCHON

THIS SPACE FOR WRITING MESSAGES

For the first time in months I spent the night with Darian just south of Port Townsend. I told him I was in the final stages of finishing up a short story based on our years together. His response was one of great agitation and implied betrayal, demanding to know what I said about him. All I could say was that there is a big difference between seeing the world from a distance and feeling it close in on me.
